In December 2004, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued FAS 123R, "Shared-Based Payment," requiring recognition of compensation expense for employee stock options. Adoption of the new standard is mandatory by the third quarter 2005.

As previously reported, Anheuser-Busch had planned to early adopt FAS 123R in the first quarter 2005. The company had also planned to retrospectively apply the new standard to all prior period results in order to aid in comparability. The company had expected the impact of adoption on 2005 net income and earnings per share to approximate the impact previously disclosed for 2004.

Both the FASB and the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) have indicated that they plan to issue new, substantive implementation guidance on FAS 123R in the near future, which could significantly change stock option expense estimates for 2005. Anheuser-Busch has therefore decided to defer its adoption of FAS 123R until the required third quarter 2005 implementation date to assure that its accounting and reporting practices will reflect the final FASB and SEC guidance. The company will defer a decision on whether it will apply FAS 123R prospectively or retrospectively until after it has reviewed the final guidance from the FASB and SEC.
