VODAFONE, SAFARICOM AND WESTERN UNION ANNOUNCE PARTNERSHIP TO DELIVER INTERNATIONAL MOBILE MONEY TRANSFERS

Pilot launched between U.K. and Kenya

Vodafone, Safaricom, and The Western Union Company announced today that they will partner to pilot a cross-border Mobile Money Transfer (MMT) service between the U.K. and Kenya. This service will enable customers to send cross-border remittances from select locations directly to Safaricom mobile subscribers in Kenya, generally in minutes.

The initiative uses Western Union's trusted global hub for processing cross-border remittances. It builds on the success of M-PESA, a mobile money transfer service in Kenya offered by Vodafone and sister company Safaricom, which has attracted over 4 million customers since its launch in March 2007.

The pilot will take place through a select number of Western Union® agents based in Reading, Berkshire. Consumers can send funds to any Safaricom mobile subscriber in Kenya in a matter of minutes. Receivers can use their funds in a variety of ways, including visiting one of 4,000 M-PESA agents in Kenya to withdraw their cash, or forwarding it on to another mobile phone in Kenya.

The successful take-up of M-PESA in Kenya has clearly demonstrated the demand for easily accessible, secure cash payment services in emerging markets, said Nick Hughes, Vodafone's Head of International Mobile Payments. Our partnership with Western Union allows M-PESA subscribers to receive international remittances and builds on the demand we have already seen domestically in Kenya.

This program aligns a global leader in money-transfer services, the world's largest mobile operator group, and arguably one of the most impressive success stories in mobile money, said Matt Dill, Senior Vice President, Western Union Digital Ventures. In offering M-PESA users the opportunity to receive funds from abroad for the first time, these three companies are changing the way money moves around the globe.

Michael Joseph, CEO of Safaricom, said, "This is another great step for M-PESA and will benefit many Kenyans all over the world. International remittances form a significant part of the total income for some Kenyans, and the partnership with Western Union will provide Kenyans with an opportunity to receive small values of cash from abroad in a fast, safe and affordable way."

There are many benefits of using mobile phones for micro-transactions in a country like Kenya, where few people have bank accounts and over 10 million people have mobile phones. Furthermore, increased global migration has led to a significant increase in the flow of funds from expatriate migrant workers who send money home. Last year, for example, Kenya received approximately USD1.3bn* in international remittances.

Western Union, together with brands Orlandi Valuta and Vigo, has a combined network of more than 365,000 Agent locations worldwide in 200 countries and territories. Vodafone is the world's largest mobile operator by revenue and has recently expanded the M-PESA service to Tanzania and Afghanistan. Safaricom is Kenya's leading mobile operator and has had unprecedented success with its M-PESA service.

VODAFONE AND MTV TO DISCOVER THE NEXT BIG MUSIC ACT

Vodafone and MTV announce today the launch of Vodafone Fast-track, a competition designed to discover the next big music act and set them on a fast track to fame.

Over the next four weeks, any unsigned band or artist from 26 countries around the world has an opportunity to upload their best original track to the Vodafone Soundbites website (<http://www.mtv-vodafonesoundbites.com> and <http://www.mtvsoundbites.com> in the Netherlands) along with photographs and band/artist biographies to win a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to record a single and a professionally produced music video which will be aired on MTV and distributed through Vodafone live!

From January 7 onwards, the MTV community will have the opportunity to vote for their favourites and select the top 20 hopefuls. The winner will then be selected by a panel of industry experts including well known music executives.

The winner's single and music video will be produced by the MTV team who will also arrange studio time to record the winning track and secure TV broadcast during commercial airtime on MTV in 29 countries

Vodafone will then help set the winning band on a fast-track to fame. Utilising the global high speed mobile network the winner's single will be distributed via Vodafone live! across 18 European markets, as well as Australia and New Zealand

The competition spot will also be integrated within the Vodafone Music Reporter profile on MySpace (<http://www.myspace.com/vodafonemusicreporter>), where a forum will engage friends of the community to discuss the favourite entrants. The winner's video and single will then be available to stream from the MySpace Vodafone Music reporter profile.

The Vodafone Soundbites Fast-track competition will be supported by a marketing campaign with MTV running online and on TV across 26 countries.

Following the success of Vodafone Music Reporter with MySpace, we continue to deliver unique music experiences to our customers across multiple platforms, says David Wheldon Global Brand Director at Vodafone Group. Vodafone Fast-track reinforces Vodafone's credibility in the music industry, creates exciting opportunities for our customers and at the same time strengthens our position as a global communications brand.

Jules Robinson, SVP, Viacom Brand Solutions International comments, Together with Vodafone, MTV specifically created this competition to deepen and strengthen their consumers ability to engage with music and further to that contribute by defining talent within it. Empowering the consumer to select the future of new music talent across the world is an exciting and unique branding opportunity

VODAFONE CRICKET SPONSORSHIP ANNOUNCEMENT

Following a highly successful 12 year partnership, Vodafone UK and the England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) today announce that the current sponsorship agreement between Vodafone and the ECB will not be renewed. The current four year sponsorship agreement will conclude at the end of the Winter Tour of South Africa in January 2010.

Ian Shepherd, Consumer Director, Vodafone UK, commented, "We've enjoyed a successful relationship with the ECB and the England Team over the last 12 years and the sponsorship has provided us with a platform to build the Vodafone brand and add value to our customers. We are delighted to have been part of this dynamic and evolving sport. The England Team have been excellent brand ambassadors and we thank them for their ongoing support."

As part of an ongoing strategic review of our sponsorship portfolio, we have decided not to renew this sponsorship agreement. We remain fully committed to the successful conclusion of the sponsorship at the end of the Winter Tour of South Africa and we look forward to an exciting summer ahead with the Ashes. We are also working with the ECB to develop a legacy programme at grass roots level which builds on the long term investment we have made in the success of cricket across England and Wales.

John Perera, ECB Commercial Director, added, "ECB and Vodafone have enjoyed some notable achievements, both on and off the pitch during this long and successful relationship. We fully respect their decision and look forward to working with Vodafone over the next twelve months, in what promises to be the start of another exciting and momentous chapter for the England Cricket Team. This however provides a wonderful opportunity for a new partner to come in to English cricket."

VODAFONE BRINGS LAST.FM MUSIC EXPERIENCE TO MOBILE PHONES

Vodafone Customers around the world to Scrobble Music from Mobiles to Last.fm Profile and Access Artist Recommendations

Vodafone and Last.fm today announced a collaboration which, for the first time, will bring the Last.fm music experience to Vodafone customers.

From today, millions of Vodafone customers throughout Europe and India, Australia and New Zealand will be able to access Last.fm's social networking music features via their mobiles. The new mobile application includes Last.fm's scrobbling functionality that tracks what users listen to in real-time and builds them an online music profile based on their listening habits.

Last.fm is a music entertainment platform, with an active community of over 25 million users in more than 200 countries. Through its unique Scrobbler system, Last.fm builds a profile of each user's music taste by tracking what they listen to in real-time via their computer and now from their mobile. Last.fm can then use this information to intelligently recommend new music to each user based on their music preferences.

Customers who are new to Last.fm can register from their mobile and check out what their friends are listening to. In addition, customers in Germany will be able to click through directly to the Vodafone Music Store to sample and buy any music recommended by Last.fm.

Javier Foncillas, Head of Branded Content at Vodafone Group, says: "Music continues to be a major passion for our customers and that's why Vodafone consistently delivers a superior music experience in a number of different ways to ensure people get the music they want, how and when they want it. With Last.fm, Vodafone continues to pioneer social networking on mobiles, delivering a new, relevant and unique music experience, to millions of customers, across our high speed, reliable network."

Martin Stiksel, Last.fm co-founder, says: "It's really exciting to be launching our scrobbling mobile phone application with Vodafone. We're working hard to ensure that the Last.fm experience is available everywhere, from your desktop through hardware to phones, and this is another big step towards that goal."

The Last.fm application is first available to download from Last.fm at www.last.fm/vodafonescrobbler, to selected Nokia handsets including the N95, N96, N78 and 6210. All of the handsets are available from Vodafone stores, online and via indirect channels. Other handset models will follow soon.

Local language versions of the application will be available in some markets including Germany, Spain and the UK from launch. English versions will be available in all other Vodafone markets.

About Scrobbling

The Last.fm Scrobber is an application that tracks, in real-time, what songs you listen to using your iTunes, Windows Media Player, iPod, MP3 player and more. Last.fm then uses your listening data to build your personal Last.fm music profile. The Scrobbler works in the background, automatically updating your profile every time you listen to music. Using this data about your listening habits, Last.fm can intelligently recommend new artists, events, videos and other Last.fm users based on your music taste.

Vodafone currently has equity interests in 27 countries across five continents and over 40 partner networks worldwide. For more information, please visit www.vodafone.com

About Last.fm

Founded in 2002, Last.fm is a CBS Corporation (NYSE: CBS.A and CBS) owned free global music platform. Last.fm offers music fans millions of tracks in every genre for free-on-demand and radio streaming thanks to partnerships with Universal, EMI, Sony BMG, CD Baby, independent aggregators The Orchard and IODA, and more than 150,000 independent artists and labels - without the need to sign up or download any software. As well as being able to access tracks for free - a service which has seen Last.fm become the fastest-growing free online music network in the U.S. - music fans can also share their music preferences by linking their media player to the Last.fm database. As a result, Last.fm can intelligently recommend songs, artists, local concerts and even other members based on their musical tastes. Last.fm also supports unsigned artists by offering them an unprecedented Artist Royalty program through which they can earn revenue directly from Last.fm every time their music is streamed. VODAFONE POSITIONED IN THE LEADERS QUADRANT FOR PAN-WESTERN EUROPEAN MOBILE SERVICE PROVIDERS
MAGIC QUADRANT

Evaluation Based on Completeness of Vision and Ability to Execute

Vodafone, the world's leading international mobile communications group, today announced it has been positioned by Gartner, Inc. in the leaders quadrant in the Pan-Western European Mobile Service Providers Magic Quadrant * report.

According to the 2008 Pan-Western European Mobile Service Providers Magic Quadrant report, Enterprises sourcing patterns show a tendency to consolidate communications service provision. Traditionally, enterprises simply sourced fixed-line voice and data services from the provider that offered the best combination of services, coverage and pricing. But now, with mobile communications growing in importance in terms of cost and as business enablers, there is a trend to bundle fixed and mobile voice services, and to offer packages that meet all communications requirements.

We are pleased that Gartner has recognised the Multi-National Corporate offering Vodafone has in the market said Nick Jeffery, Director of Vodafone Global Enterprise. In the current economic environment, International Companies can benefit from our solutions to put them back in control of their spend, simplify their operations and ensure they are set up to make the most of their time.
