Aon Hewitt Merger Client Briefing: Week of August 16, 2010

Guidance for Client-facing Associates/Colleagues

Our number one goal during the integration period is to remain focused on our clients. While you have likely been in regular contact with your clients since the announcement on July 12, we want to make sure you have a specific contact plan to keep them informed of the latest developments related to the Aon Hewitt combination. If we don't shape the messages to our clients, someone else will.

We're now creating a set of talking points for you to use on a regular basis. As always, please tailor the messages to your clients and what you believe is their interest level, but maintain regular, frequent contact.

At least until the close of the merger, you can expect a new set of talking points on a bi-weekly basis to help you with new messages/content for your client discussions. We'll send these materials to you directly and also post them on our new shared integration portal accessible on the Knowledge Exchange (KE) at Aon or The Source at Hewitt.

For Your Client Discussions: Client Talking Points

- It's been a busy month since we announced our plans to bring together Aon and Hewitt.
- Both firms are energized about the new capabilities we'll be able to bring to clients as a combined organization.
- Despite all the work going on behind the scenes to ensure a smooth integration, our client teams have maintained 100% focus on serving clients. And we're proud of that.
- The merger of Aon and Hewitt will create a global leader in human capital solutions with the following strengths:
 - Combined Aon Hewitt revenues of $4.3 billion and 29,000 associates globally, with reach into the 120 countries where Aon does business today;
 - A leading global brand and client service that is recognized worldwide;
 - Complementary product and service portfolio across consulting, benefits outsourcing and HR business process outsourcing to meet the full spectrum of our clients' human capital needs; and
 - Diversified presence across large corporate and middle market globally.
- Because of these strengths, we're excited that Aon Hewitt will be able to provide clients with the leading solutions to their most pressing human capital issues.

- I wanted to provide you with some quick updates on each of our businesses as well as the latest news related to the integration.

- As you know, both Aon and Hewitt continue to operate independently during this transition period until the deal formally closes, which we expect by November.

Business Updates

- We have very strong businesses as the foundation for this combination, which gives us a great jumping-off point for integration.
- Both organizations recently posted quarterly results showing bottom-line strength and expected trends in top-line growth.
- Most importantly, both Aon and Hewitt are healthy organizations that are poised for growth.

Additional Detail: Aon Business Updates

- Aon reported Q2 earnings on July 30.
- Overall, Aon's results reflect continued progress and momentum.
- Total revenue increased 1% to $1.9 billion due to a 2% increase from acquisitions.
- EPS from continuing operations increased 7% to $0.81.
- Consulting revenue increased 6% to $317 million, with an increase in organic revenue of 2%. This was highlighted by strong growth in international health and benefits brokerage and global compensation consulting. Expectations for continued modest growth are driven by an encouraging pipeline in compensation consulting, an increase in discretionary-related work, and new services such as dependent eligibility audits and corporate transactions consulting.
- Consulting adjusted operating margin was 14.8%, down 20 basis points. For the first half of 2010, with flat organic revenue, Aon Consulting's industry-leading margins have expanded 20 basis points to 16.1%.

- After announcing the sponsorship of Manchester United in 2009, the new team shirts with the Aon logo were revealed on July 15. As the number one sports franchise, in the number one sport in the world, Manchester United has more than 330 million fans worldwide. The sponsorship represents a well-researched and significant opportunity for both global brand recognition as well as the ability to amplify Aon leadership's vision to unite the firm globally.

Additional Detail: Hewitt Business Updates

- Hewitt reported Q3 results on August 5.

- Overall, Hewitt delivered a solid quarter with strong results from the Consulting and HR Business Process Outsourcing (HR BPO) segments and soft, but anticipated, results in the Benefits Outsourcing segment.

- Consulting delivered a 5% organic constant currency growth rate---the highest growth rate in more than a year and a half---with each of the practices contributing, and many of the practices making a nice comeback as well. It is especially pleasing to see demand return in some of the more discretionary practices, Talent & Organization Consulting and Communication Consulting.

- Compared to Mercer, Hewitt's revenues were ahead in all practices except Investment Consulting. Towers Watson revenues were down for the most recent quarter.

- HR BPO delivered another quarter of profit, and added another new client (a large insurance company). This addition means that the business has met its new client growth goals for the year.

- Even though Hewitt experienced declining project revenue and margins in Benefits Outsourcing, the business continues to make good, steady progress against the objectives of investing back in products and delivering excellent service.

- Hewitt has a strong sales pipeline in each of its businesses and feels good about its prospects for the coming year.

Integration News

- Both Aon and Hewitt recently set the dates for their respective stockholder votes on September 20, 2010.
- Though this is one milestone required to close the transaction, we still have a number of regulatory hurdles ahead including reviews by anti-trust agencies in the U.S., the EU, and Canada.
- We're making steady progress on integration planning.
- We've identified both client-facing and non-client facing integration leaders and working teams. They are developing plans to bring together our two firms in a way that allows us to stay focused on our client commitments.
- Many clients have asked how we plan to achieve the synergy targets that were communicated when the merger was announced. This is obviously one of the key tasks of the integration teams.
- We are committed to achieving these synergies in a manner that protects our ability to continue to serve all of our clients well and continue to invest in innovative solutions to meet our clients' needs. As you'd expect, most of this savings comes from eliminating duplicate public company costs and streamlining our combined infrastructure and corporate functions.
- We're pleased that our companies are working well together and share a set of common goals and values, with client service being at the forefront.
- While there are obviously integration questions that our dedicated teams are working through, rest assured that everything we do will be in the best interest of our clients.
- Once we clear some additional regulatory approvals, we will be in a position to name our senior management team reporting to Russ Fradin, the chairman and chief executive officer of the combined Aon Hewitt.
- We'll keep you informed of these decisions.

- Both companies are tremendously excited at the opportunities ahead to serve clients in a greater capacity and meet even more of their needs.
