In the United States, Presidential elections were held on November 8th, 2016, resulting in Mr. Donald Trump, the Republican Party candidate, being elected. The result of the U.S. Presidential elections had a significant impact on Mexican assets, including the Fund, after the close of the Fund´s fiscal year.

- Mexico's gross domestic product ("GDP") grew 2.6% during 2015 and 2.3% during the first nine months of 2016, as compared with the same period of the previous year. - During fiscal 2016, the Fund's NAV per share registered a total return[1] of -5.04%, compared with returns of -4.95% and -4.13% over the same period registered by the Morgan Stanley Capital International ("MSCI") Mexico Index and the Bolsa IPC Index, respectively. In local currency, the NAV per share total return was 8.55%, compared with returns of 8.65% and 9.60% over the same period registered by the MSCI Mexico Index and the Bolsa IPC Index, respectively.

- During fiscal 2016, the Fund's market price per share registered a total return of -5.46%. As of October 31, 2016, the Fund's market price and NAV per share were $16.27 and $18.57, respectively, reflecting a discount of 12.39%, compared with a discount of 11.28% at the end of fiscal 2015.

- The Board has ratified the continuation of the Fund's MDP during fiscal 2017 at the annual rate of 3% of NAV per share recorded on December 31, 2016. The Fund has declared the last distribution of fiscal 2016 of $0.1415 per share to be paid on January 17, 2017, to stockholders of record on January 6, 2017.

To Our Stockholders:

We present to you the Fund's 2016 Annual Report for the year ended October 31, 2016. In this report, we summarize the period's prevailing economic, political and market conditions in Mexico and outline the Fund's investment strategy and resulting performance. We hope you find this report useful and informative.

Economic and Political Environment

During the Fund´s fiscal year ended October 31, 2016, global uncertainty amplified as a result of economic and political events. On June 23rd, a referendum was held in the UK to vote on its continued membership in the EU. The referendum resulted in a majority vote of 52% in favor of leaving the EU. In the United States, Presidential elections were held on November 8th, 2016, resulting in Mr. Donald Trump, the Republican Party candidate, being elected. These events caused uncertainty and volatility in financial markets and affected the performance of some asset classes worldwide, with the result of the U.S. Presidential elections serving as a major trigger for a sharp decline in the value of Mexican assets, including the Fund, particularly after the close of the Fund´s fiscal year. In addition, expectations that the Federal Reserve (the "Fed") will continue to increase its overnight interest rate have also resulted in high volatility and risk aversion.

During the first nine months of 2016, Mexico´s GDP expanded 2.3%, compared with the same period of the prior year, as strong domestic consumption has compensated for lower industrial activity and a difficult external environment.

The price of oil reached its minimum level of the year of $35.4 USD/bbl in January 2016 measured by the price of West Texas Intermediate (used as a benchmark for oil pricing), but recovered to $47.5 USD/bbl as of October 31, 2016, an increase of 7% during calendar 2016. Oil prices have been supported by, among other things, a preliminary agreement of The Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) in September 2016 and officially agreed to in November 2016 to reduce oil output by 1.2 million barrels per day ("mbpd") to 32.5 mbpd, which resulted in a further increase of oil prices during November. Despite the above, average oil prices during calendar 2016, as of October 31st, are 44% and 19% below the average prices of 2014 and 2015, respectively. The Mexican economy's dependence on oil has declined significantly during the last two years. As of September 30, 2016, oil-related income represented 6% of GDP and 18% of public sector revenues, compared to 10% of GDP and 35% of public sector revenues in 2013. The Mexican government hedged a significant portion of oil exports for 2016 and 2017 at $49 and $42 USD/bbl, respectively.

Mexico´s energy reform is progressing; during calendar 2015 the National Hydrocarbons Commission ("CNH") held three auctions corresponding to round one, related to shallow water blocks and mature onshore blocks to both domestic and foreign companies. In December 2016, the CNH held its fourth auction related to round one for exploration and production in deep waters. The results were positive as eight out of the ten blocks auctioned received winning bids. In addition, in December 2016, Pemex awarded its first ever farm-out (assignment of part or all of an oil interest to a third-party), starting a new era for Pemex consisting of forming partnerships for investments to increase oil production. The CNH expects to start the second round of auctions with three different biddings during 2017. Lastly, Mexican National Energy Control Center ("CENACE") held two wholesale electricity auctions in which companies won long-term contracts to supply renewable energy, with an expected investment of $6.6 billion during the next three years.

Due to lower oil revenues and in order to maintain a strong fiscal position, the Mexican Government announced public expenditure cuts for 2016 and 2017 of $164 and $240 billion pesos ("Ps."), respectively, equivalent to 0.9% and 1.2% of GDP, in addition to public expenditure cuts of Ps. 124 billion during 2015. Furthermore, Mexico´s Central Bank ("Banxico") transferred Ps. 239 billion to the Federal Government corresponding to its operational surplus during 2015, with proceeds used by the Government to buy back outstanding public debt, to reduce the amount of debt placements during 2016 and to contribute to the country´s budget revenue stabilization fund. As a result, the fiscal deficit, which was 3.5% during calendar 2015, is expected to decrease to 2.9% in 2017, signaling the Government´s commitment to balancing public finances. It is also expected that a primary surplus (which excludes interest payments) of 0.4% of GDP will be achieved in 2017, compared to a deficit of 1.1% and 1.2% in 2014 and 2015, respectively. Additionally, in June 2016, the International Monetary Fund renewed its Flexible Credit Line to Mexico, on a new two year agreement, increasing the amount to $88 billion from $67 billion. Notwithstanding the above, S&P changed its outlook on the country from stable to negative in late August, joining Moody´s which also downgraded its outlook in March 2016. Inflation is stable and near its historical lowest levels, registering an annual rate of 3.1% as of October 2016.

On the monetary policy front, Banxico increased its overnight interest rates by 275 basis points to 5.75% over the course of six different meetings between December 2015 and 2016. The Fed increased by 25 basis points its reference interest rate in both December 2015 and 2016, to set it at a range of between 0.50% and 0.75%. Lastly, the European Central Bank (the "ECB") increased its monetary stimulus by reducing its main refinancing rate by 5 basis points to 0.00% and increasing its bond buying by €20 billion per month to €80 billion.

Table of Contents

The Mexican peso depreciated against the U.S. dollar during fiscal and calendar 2016 by 13% and 9%, respectively, to Ps. 18.86, as of October 31, 2016. From this date until December 20, 2016, it has further depreciated 8% due to concerns raised by the election of Mr. Donald Trump as President of the United States. The Foreign Exchange Commission canceled on February 17, 2016 the mechanism under which it could auction up to $400 million dollars in the market during any given day. These mechanisms were set to expire on March 31, 2016. However, the possibility was left open to sell dollars to the market on a discretionary basis.

Mexican economists surveyed by Banxico at the end of November 2016 estimate GDP growth for 2017 and 2018 at 1.7% and 2.4%, respectively, with inflation at annual rates of 4.0% and 3.6%, respectively. Economists also expect the overnight interest rate to reach 6.4% and 6.8% by the end of 2017 and 2018, respectively.

Management Discussion of Fund's Performance and Portfolio Strategy

During fiscal 2016, the Mexican equity market had a negative performance measured in U.S. dollars due to the depreciation of the Mexican peso, as previously discussed in this report. The Fund's NAV per share registered a total return of -5.04% during fiscal 2016, while the MSCI Mexico Index and the Bolsa IPC Index registered total returns of -4.95% and -4.13%, respectively. The Fund's market price registered a total return of -5.46% during fiscal 2016, resulting in a lower valuation to its NAV per share. The Fund´s discount at the end of October 2015 was 11.28%, increasing to a discount of 12.39% at the end of fiscal 2016.

The following table shows the annualized performance[1] of the Fund's market price and NAV per share, as well as that of the Fund's benchmark and the Bolsa IPC Index, for periods ended October 31, 2016.

During fiscal 2016, Impulsora del Fondo México, S.C. (the "Adviser" or "Impulsora") decreased the Fund's exposure to the telecommunications and media sectors due to increased competition and lower profitability as well as issuers in the domestic consumption sector due to high relative valuations. On the other hand, the Adviser increased the Fund's exposure to the materials sector due to higher cement prices in Mexico. At the same time, the Adviser increased the Fund´s exposure to the financial and beverages sectors as some issuers´ stock prices had sharp declines which translated into attractive valuations. The Adviser believes that attractive equity opportunities will arise in the months to come, resulting from current volatility and risk aversion, and supported by solid fundamentals of the Mexican economy and selected issuers.

The following table shows the top five contributors to the performance of the Fund's NAV relative to the MSCI Mexico Index during fiscal 2016. The table is sorted according to the contribution of these issuers to the Fund's outperformance relative to the MSCI Mexico Index and shows the issuers' market price returns during the period. This fiscal year, the Fund benefited by double-digit returns in Ternium and Grupo Aeroportuario del Centro Norte, as these issuers reported strong financial reports during the period and the Fund had an overweight position in both issuers. In addition, underweight exposures in Grupo Televisa, América Móvil and Grupo Financiero Inbursa further supported the Fund´s relative performance, given their negative return during this fiscal year.

The Mexico Fund, Inc.

During fiscal 2016, a total of 7,789,089 Fund shares traded on all U.S. consolidated markets, resulting in a daily average value of shares traded of $512,560. The Fund is one of the most liquid closed-end funds investing outside the United States, as comparable funds[2] traded a daily average and median of $414,957 and $159,404, respectively, during the same period.

The average price-to-earnings ratio ("PER") of the Mexican equity market at the end of October 2016 was 25.3 times, while the price-to-book value ratio was 2.4 times[3]. The market capitalization of the Bolsa at the end of October 2016 amounted to $433.6 billion. During the first nine months of calendar 2016, financial statements of Mexican listed companies have reported very solid results. Revenues, EBITDA[4] and net income increased 12.8%, 13.5% and 22.8%, respectively, much higher than the overall economic figures already mentioned in this report, due to strong domestic consumption, and income from exports and sales abroad have generated a positive effect when translated to local currency. The Adviser will continue to be prudent in identifying companies with strong balance sheets that include manageable debt levels, positive free cash flows, strong corporate governance policies, high quality management teams, attractive growth potential and proven business models.

Declaration of Distributions Under MDP

Under the MDP, the Fund pays quarterly distributions at an annual rate of 3% of the Fund's NAV per share recorded on the last business day of the previous calendar year. As announced on September 13, 2016, the Board approved a change in the quarterly distribution rate from an annual rate of 6% to 3%, effective with the distribution paid in October 2016. In making this determination, the Board considered that the events that occurred during fiscal 2016, such as weakening of the Mexican equity market driven by the Mexican peso depreciation, low oil prices, global political uncertainty, deceleration of the Chinese economy, concerns around the monetary policy in the United States and weaker than expected growth of the Mexican economy, have combined to result in lower than expected returns by the Fund. The Board believes that the annual rate of 3% is significant for Fund stockholders and is better aligned with the past 5 and 10 year annual rates of return in the Fund's NAV. In addition, it considers the MDP to be an effective tool for reducing the Fund's discount. Despite the current environment, the Board maintains a positive view on long-term prospects of the Mexican economy and the Fund.

Pursuant to the MDP, the Board has declared a dividend distribution of $0.1415 per share, payable in cash on January 17, 2017 to stockholders of record on January 6, 2017.

As mentioned in this report, the Mexican economy and equity market have faced a challenging environment; notwithstanding the above, your Fund has outperformed its benchmark during the last three, five and ten years, with a similar return during the last year. We are confident that the solid fundamentals of selected listed companies and the long-term strength of key economic variables in Mexico will continue to result in attractive investment opportunities in the Mexican equity market. We hope you find this report useful and informative, and we thank you for your continued confidence in the Fund.

Sincerely yours,

Alberto Osorio	Emilio Carrillo Gamboa
