SUPPORT FOR PENSION CHANGES

British Airways today (January 5, 2007) welcomed the decision by its trade unions in the BA Forum to recommend changes to its New Airways Pension Scheme (NAPS), which has a GBP2.1 billion deficit.

The British Airways Forum represents the airline's four unions and is recommending acceptance of the proposal and will now consult with members formally.

The company has agreed to make a one off contribution of GBP800 million into the fund subject to acceptance of benefit changes. Together with a one-off employee saving of GBP400 million and changes to future benefits, the NAPS pension deficit will be reduced by more than half from an existing GBP2.1 billion to GBP0.9 billion and the company's annual contributions will be around GBP280 million a year for the next ten years.

British Airways' chief executive, Willie Walsh, said: "This is great news. Together with the NAPS Trustees and staff, we have found a shared solution that helps secure the pensions of our 33,500 NAPS members and removes a major blocker to future investment in British Airways. This brings the NAPS deficit and ongoing contributions to a level which is affordable by British Airways and effectively tackles one of the most fundamental issues we face."

A funding plan to clear the NAPS deficit over 10 years was agreed with the pension scheme trustees in 2006, subject to members accepting changes to future benefits.

Notes to editors:

Details of the proposed pension arrangements for NAPS will be released following communications to employees on Monday.

Other background information:

- The NAPS actuarial deficit rose from GBP928 million in 2003 to GBP2.1 billion in 2006 despite a doubling of BA's contributions and a recovery of the stock market.
- BA's contribution to NAPS in 2005/6 was GBP235 million - the equivalent of five times members' contributions. Without future benefit changes, contributions would have to increase to GBP497 million per annum.
- Under the proposal BA will pay the GBP800m one-off cash injection with GBP250 million this month and GBP550 million in April.
- The company will also pay up to GBP150 million more in contributions over the next three years subject to meeting certain financial targets.
- NAPS has 33,794 active members, 20,269 deferred and 15,185 pensioners. The airline closed NAPS to new members in 2003 but members continue to accrue benefits.
- In 2003, the airline introduced British Airways' Retirement Plan (BARP) for new joiners, including chief executive Willie Walsh who joined in May 2005. BARP is a defined contribution scheme.
- NAPS is a final salary scheme based on length of service multiplied by pensionable pay, currently divided by 56 for ground staff and 52 for air crew with normal retirement age of 60 for ground staff and 55 for aircrew.
