ABB considers options for Combustion Engineering asbestos liability

Zurich, Switzerland, Oct. 21, 2002 - The ABB Group announced today it is likely that the expected asbestos-related costs of its U.S. subsidiary Combustion Engineering, Inc. (CE) now exceed the value of CE's assets, if CE's historical settlement policies are continued into the future. The book value of CE's assets as of September 30, 2002 is US$812 million.

CE and the ABB Group are considering various options for resolving the asbestos liability, including the possible reorganization of CE under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy code.

It is ABB's position that CE's asbestos-related liability can only be asserted against CE. Some claimants have named other entities in connection with claims against CE, including ABB Inc. and ABB Ltd., but there has been no adjudication that any other entity within the ABB Group has liability for claims against CE.

ABB acquired CE in 1990. Historically, asbestos containing insulation materials were used to insulate CE boilers. CE has paid out US$865 million to claimants from 1990 to end 2001.

Many factors will affect the ultimate cost of resolving CE's liability, and it is not possible now to determine the magnitude of those costs. Because the ultimate cost of resolution is uncertain, the current reserve is not being increased, but it no longer represents an estimate of the expected cost to CE of continuing to resolve current and future claims under its historical settlement policy.

ABB revises earnings outlook downward

Confirms net debt reduction target of US$ 1.5 billion by year-end

Zurich, Switzerland, October 21, 2002 - ABB said today it is revising its 2002 earnings outlook downward as a result of lingering market weakness and slower than expected benefits from its cost reduction program.

At the same time, ABB confirmed its target of reducing net debt by US$ 1.5 billion by year-end, down from the level of US$ 4.1 billion at the end of 2001.

"The early signs of economic recovery that we saw in the first half of the year have not materialized," said ABB chairman and CEO Jurgen Dormann. "Visibility during the months of July and August was low, and we now see that September has not delivered the expected recovery. As a result, we are lowering our outlook for earnings."

Dormann added that the company had anticipated stronger markets would lift earnings in the second half of the year. This would have offset the impact of write-downs in some large Oil, Gas and Petrochemicals projects, losses in Building Systems, investment write-downs in New Ventures and cost overruns in Utilities.

"Given the uncertainty surrounding the strength and timing of an economic recovery, we will not give an updated earnings outlook at this time," said Dormann. "What is clear is that the cost base of the company is still too high given the weak market conditions. We are speeding up our efforts to cut costs and further streamline the organization in line with our core businesses of power and automation technologies."

The company said its medium-term targets were under review.

As previously announced, the company will release its third-quarter results on October 24, 2002.
