The Company may make forward-looking statements, including, for example, statements about management expectations, strategic objectives, business prospects, anticipated expense savings and financial results, anticipated results of legal proceedings, and other similar matters. These forward-looking statements are not statements of historical facts and represent only the Company's beliefs regarding future events, which are inherently uncertain. There are a variety of factors, many of which are beyond the Company's control, which affect its operations, performance, business strategy and results and could cause its actual results and experience to differ materially from the expectations and objectives expressed in any forward-looking statement. These factors include, but are not limited to, the economic environment in general and the air cargo market in particular, changes in air cargo capacity and in demand by the U.S. military, the outcome of restructuring negotiations with the Company's creditors and lessors, the uncertainties associated with a filing under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code and related considerations of approval of a plan of reorganization, pending and future litigation against the Company, the outcome of the Securities and Exchange Commission's (SEC) investigation of the Company, the ability of the Company to satisfy its future financing needs, significant changes in fuel prices and supply, as well as other operating expenses, the ability to maintain collective bargaining agreements on terms satisfactory to the Company, the availability and cost of war risk insurance for the Company and the other risks and uncertainties that may be described from time to time in the Company's filings with the SEC. The Company does not undertake to update forward-looking statements to reflect the impact of circumstances or events that arise after the date on which any forward-looking statement was made. The reader should, however, consult any further disclosures the Company may make in its reports filed with the SEC.
