FERC Favors ITC Transaction

First commission to approve separation/merger

Since announcing the proposed separation of Entergy's transmission business and merger into an ITC Holdings Corp. subsidiary, the companies have explained how the transaction will result in significant benefits to the grid, customers and communities.

On June 20, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission became the first utility regulator to approve the companies' joint application for the transaction along with new rate constructs for the transmission assets under ITC ownership. This approval follows the FERC approval received in May by ITC and Entergy authorizing utility operating company financings associated with the transaction.

This is good progress, and very encouraging to regulatory affairs teams working hard with our regulators across the region, said Jeanne Kenney, leader of Entergy's Transmission Regulatory Implementation Team.

Our state and local regulators want to ensure that customers realize the benefits expected from the transaction, Kenney said. We will continue to actively work through the regulatory process with the retail regulators and parties in the various jurisdictional proceedings.

Approval for the transaction is being sought from Entergy's state and local jurisdictions. Proceedings are underway before the Arkansas Public Service Commission, Louisiana Public Service Commission, New Orleans City Council, Mississippi Public Service Commission, Missouri Public Service Commission and the Public Utility Commission of Texas.

Hearings on the application are complete in Texas and Missouri. Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and New Orleans hearings are currently scheduled in July and August.

Through several related orders, FERC would allow the transfer of approximately 15,400 circuit miles of interconnected transmission lines at voltages of 69kV and above and the associated substations in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and Texas from Entergy to ITC. Meanwhile, Entergy's operating companies would continue to own and operate their respective distribution and generation businesses and provide customer service, billing, outage reporting and restoration services to homes and businesses in the region.

In addition to the miles of transmission lines and acres of substations involved in the transaction, approximately 750 Entergy employees, including key leadership personnel from Entergy's transmission business, would become employees of ITC as a result of the transaction. Upon closing of the transaction, ITC would establish and maintain a regional headquarters in Jackson, Miss., where the headquarters of Entergy's transmission business currently is located. ITC also would have offices and warehouses throughout the existing Entergy service territory to ensure a local presence and timely response to stakeholder and system needs.
